The EPA's Clean Power Plan: Assuring Justice and Health for All

Congressman Raúl M. Grijalva and Congressman Keith Ellison Co-chairs, Congressional Progressive Caucus

Communities of color and low income across this country are disproportionately burdened by air pollution which is an important contributor to the rise in health disparities. These communities also are less resilient in the face of climate change. On June 2nd, the Environmental Protection Agency proposed the Clean Power Plan to reduce carbon pollution from existing power plants by 30% by 2030. This briefing will:

- Describe what the Clean Power Plan is
- Educate key legislators, their staff, and allied community partners on the environmental justice concerns regarding this proposed plan
